MADAME CHARLES DE LA TOUR

YESTERDAY

IT may be said of Madame Charles de la Tour that she was a worthy symbol of feminine energy and conjugal devotion in highly dramatic times and places. Barely 15 years of age when she came to Acadia from France to marry the Chevalier, she accepted the greatest risks and displayed the highest courage—even to the extent of conducting by herself the defence of the fort of St. John which was attacked by a strong force, surrendering only because of a sentry's treachery. She died in captivity, leaving the memory of a great and vigorous personality.

TO-DAY

Painted by Adam Sherriff Scott, R.C.A., Historical Data by E. Z. Massicotte, Archivist and Historian.